The enclosed copy of PUBLIC RELATIONS NEWS, sent with our compliments, contains information important to you. PR professionals use and depend upon the reliable and idea-packed material contained in every issue. You, too, can have it on your desk every Monday morning, with the additional services described below -- at a $5.00 saving.

PUBLIC RELATIONS NEWS, founded in 1944, is the independent weekly devoted to reporting new techniques and developments in the PR field. Written in fast-moving newsletter style, and edited by the world's most experienced PR editor, Denny Griswold, this bible of the field brings you, every week, the authoritative information you need -- in just ten minutes of easy reading.

Gives You Best Public Relations Plans! ... In addition, every week you get a complete Case Study, describing in detail the workings of an adaptable public relations program. In the course of a year, you receive 52 carefully documented studies - showing you public relations problems which have been successfully solved by the outstanding public relations executives and counsel of the world. The Case Studies are all objectively evaluated and staff-written.

You also get the Public Relations News Idea Library -- listings of the important public relations literature of the week. As a subscriber, the "Library" brings you, free, over 100 valuable items per year.

Free Information Service For Subscribers ... Our editors invite you to call on them for cost-free information on any subject covered in the weekly.

PR Exchange ... You are privileged to make contact with PR leaders throughout the world who are fellow readers of PUBLIC RELATIONS NEWS.

In addition ... we provide a Semi-Annual Index to guide you quickly to the public relations information contained in your weekly issues, giving you what you want when you want it ... We also make recommendations of PR counseling firms.

Job Opportunities ... PUBLIC RELATIONS NEWS maintains a job clearing center for its readers. It helps bring together the right person and the right job. Hundreds of our subscribers have used this service for additions and replacements on their staffs, and also for advancements in their own public relations careers.

How profitable PUBLIC RELATIONS NEWS can be to you is proven by its long use, in both profit and non-profit fields, by such well-informed PR professionals as George Hammond, Board Chairman, Carl Byoir & Associates, Inc.; Anthony G. De Lorenzo, Vice President, General Motors Corporation; Edward J. Gerrity, Jr., Senior Vice President and Director, Corporate Relations & Adv., ITT; Jack Steinberg, Vice President, Cunningham & Walsh, ad agency; J. Carroll Bateman, President, Insurance Information Institute; Albert J. Zack, PR Director, AFL & CIO; Irving L. Rimer, Vice President, American Cancer Society;

PUBLICITY AND PUBLIC RELATIONS IDEAS WITH DOLLARS AND CENTS VALUE SUCH AS:

- ...How you can get management support for your PR programs
- ...How you can get better publicity at lower cost
- ...How you can avoid minority group crises
- ...How you can get bigger PR budgets
- ...How you can measure and report PR results
- ...How you can build a better public reputation for your organization and its officers
- ...How you can adapt successful techniques
- ...How you can prepare for a higher-level, higher-salaried job
- ...How to build loyalty of employees and inform them about their benefits
- ...How to use the anniversary as a PR tool
- ...How to keep stockholders happy and attract new ones
- ...How to use PR to increase sales

With the answers to these questions at your fingertips - and hundreds more - you can produce prize-winning programs and be rewarded with promotions, increased salary, and greater prestige.
